Good Morning.

I wanted to ask if your state has a definition of building, structure, or man-made structure in you law or rules, or even a policy. Or do you refer to EPA or other outside 'authority'.

I'm asking in relation to rodent control but wanted to see what has been developed for any aspect of structural regulation at the state level.

Also if you have a moment and can elaborate on any enforcement issues which were either hurt or helped in relation to misuse of products with labels which used these terms - because of a lack of definition or because of your own definition.

On a side note, during the Annual ASPCRO conference (sorry if we missed you cause it was great! – there is always next year – Seattle!) the Board reinitiated the Rodenticide Committee due to the recent and likely future issues related to implementation of the rodenticide risk mitigation measures, recent law suits between the agency and registrants, and other actions involving rodenticide labels.

We sent out a survey to states for information, which was passed on to the agency, and I will update you with in a separate email.

If you would be interested in serving on the committee, please let me know. The implications to agriculture are just as important so even if your focus is not strictly structural, we would welcome your input on the committee.

Thanks in advance for your time and have a great week. B.
